Philosophy of Education Essay Competition for Graduate Students

Submission Deadline June 10, 2019
*Sponsored by the Center for Ethics and Education,
University of Wisconsin-Madison & University of Illinois Chicago*

The Center for Ethics and Education is pleased to announce an essay competition for graduate students. We are looking for essays that use philosophical insight and argument to address an important issue in educational policy and/or practice. The problem that your address might arise in early childhood education, compulsory education, or post-secondary education, or in the way children are raised in families.

Awards

- 1st prize winner - $3000 + invitation to participate as discussant in one of the Center's regular workshop-style conferences (includes airfare, accommodation, food).
- 2nd prize winner - $2000
- 3rd prize winner - $1000

Eligibility

- Essay must not exceed 6500 words (including references).
- Must not already be published or submitted to publication.
- Must be written in English.
- May be co-authored, though both authors must be graduate students.

The authors or co-authors must be enrolled in a graduate degree program in an accredited college or university, but must not yet have defended their PhD by June 10, 2019.
